JOHN M'CAUSLAND,

When the First Bleycle Was Invented. Who Wrote "Aux Italiennes"-Words of Kentucky Belle.

Can Our Readers Give It?

Will you kindly inform me in regard to the ancestors of the late Confederate General John McCausiand? I have been looking up the McCausiand family in Maine, and there is a tradition that one of the family went South a century or so ago. I thought it possible that General McCausiand might be a descendant of this one. If you cannot ald me, easily, kindly refer me to some one who can. I have an impression that General McCausiand and me, and the some one who can. I have an impression that Gen-eral McCausland was a Virginian. O. B. CLASON, Gardner, Mc.

What Surrender?

We have received a communication requesting us to publish the words of "The Surrender."

As there have been a number of sur-renders during the course of time, we hope we are not liable to the charge of stupidity if we ask "Which one?"

Kentucky Belle.

In response to a score of requests, we publish below Constance Fenimore Wool-son's poem "Kentucky Belle." Summer of '63, sir, and Conrad had gone awayGone so the county-town; sir, to sell our first load of hay;

We lived in the log-house yonder, poor
as ever you've seen.
Roschen then was a baby, and I was only

Conrad, he took the oxen, but he left Kentucky Belle; How much we thought of Kentuck-I couldn't begin to tell. Came from the Blue Grass country; my father gave her to me When I rode North with Conrad, away from the Tennessee.

Conrad lived in Ohio, a German he is, you know;
The house stood in broad corn-fields, stretching on, row after row;
The old folks made me welcome; they were kind as kind could be;
But I kept longing, longing for the hills

Oh! for a sight of water, the shadowed slope of a hill; Clouds that hang of the summit; a wind that never is still; But the level land went stretching away to meet the sky,

Never a rise from North to South, to rest the weary eye!!

From East to West, no river to shine out under the moon;

Nothing to make a shadow in the yellow afternoon.

Only the breathless sunshine, as I looked out, all forlorn;

Only the "rustle," "rustle," as I walked among the corn.

When I fell sick with pining, we didn't wait any more.

But moved away from the corn-lands, out to the river shore;
The Tuscarawar, it's called, sir; off there's a hill, you see;
And now I've grown to like it next best to the Tennessee.

I was at work that morning;; some one came riding like mad; Over the bridge and up the road; Far-mer Rouf's little lad; mer Rours little lad:
Bare-back he rode; he had no hat; he hardly stopped to say:
"Morgan's men are coming, Frau; they're galloping on this way.

"I'm sent to warn the neighbors; he isn't a mile behind; He sweeps up all the horses, every horse that he can find; Morgan, Morgan, the raider, and Mor-gan's terrible men;

With bowie knives and pistols, are gal-loping up the glen." The lad rode down the valley, and I stood still at the door: The baby laughed and prattled, playing with spools on the floor; tuck was out in the pasture; Conrad, my man, was gone; Near, nearer, Morgan's men were gal-loping, galloping on!

Sudden I picked up baby, and ran to the pasture bar;
"Kentuck!"-I called-"Kentucky!" She knew me ever so far; I led her down to the gully that turns down there to the right; And tied her to the bushes—her head was just out of sight.

As I ran back to the log-house, at once there came a sound: The ring of hoofs, galloping hoofs—trembling over the ground:

Coming into the turnpike out from the White Woman Glen;
Morgan, Morgan, the raider, and Morgan's terrible men.

As near they drew and nearer, my heart beat fast in alarm. But I still stood in the door-way, with baby on my arm. They come; they passed; with spur and whip in haste they sped along; Morgan, Morgan, the raider, and his band, six hundred strong-Weary they looked and jaded, riding through night and through day: Pushing on East to the river, many miles

To the border-strip where Virginia runs up into the West,

And ford the upper Ohio before they could stop to rest,

On like the wind they hurried, and Morgan rode ir advance;
Dright were his eyes, like live coals, as he gave me a sideways glance.
And I was just breathing freely, after my cheking pain;
When the last of the troopers suddenly drew his rein.

Frightened I was to death, sir, I scarce

could look in his face
As he asked for a drink of water, and glanced arcund the place;
I gave him a cup, and he smiled—'twas orly a boy, you see;
Faint and worn, with dim blue eyes; and
're'd salled on the Tennessee.

Only sixteen he was, sir; a fond mother's only son;
Off and away with Morgan before his life had begin! The damp drops stood on his temples; drawn was the boylsh mouth; And I thought me of the mother waiting down in the South.

Oh! pluck was he to the backbone, and clear grit through and through;
Bonsted and bragged like a trooper; but the big words wouldn't do:
The boy was dying, sir, dying, as plain as plain could be;
Worn out by his ride with Morgan up from the Tennessee.

But when I told the laddle that I, too, was from the South,
Water came in his dim eyes and quivers around his mouth;
"Do you know the Blue Grass country?"
he wistful began to say.

ed and brought him to;

I fed him, and coaxed him, as I thought his mother'd do;
And when the lad got better, and the noise in his head was gone.

Morgan's men were miles away, and galloping, galloping on.

"Oh! I must go," he muttered; "I must be up and away—Morgan, Morgan, is waiting for me, Oh! What will Morgan say."
But I heard a sound of tramping and kept him back from the door;
The ringing sound of horses' hoofs that I had heard before.

And on, on came the soldiers—the Michigan cavalry—
And fast they rode, and black they looked, galloping rapidly;
They had followed hard on Morgan's track; they had followed day and night;
But of Morgan and Morgan's raiders they had not caught a sight.

And rich Ohio sat startled through all these summer days;
For strange, wild men were galloping over her brond highways.
Now here, now there, now seen, now gone, now north, now east, now west Through river-valleys and corn-land farms, sweeping away her best.

farms, sweeping away her best.

A bold ride and a long ride! But they were taken at last;
They almost reached the river by galloping hard and fast;
But the boys in blue were upon them ere ever they gained the ford.
And Morgan, Morgan, the raider, laid down his terrible sword.
Well, I kept the boy till evening, kept him against his will.
Ext he was too weak to follow, and sat there raile and still;

there nale and still;
When it was cool and dusky, you'll wonder to hear me tell,
But I stile down to that gully, and brought up Kentucky Belle.

I kissed the star on her forehead-my pretty, gentle lass.

But I knew that she'd be happy back in The old Blue Grass.
A suit of clothes of Conrad's—with all the money I had.
And Kentuck, pretty Kentuck, I gave to the worn-out lad.

guided him to the southward as well as I knew how;

The boy rode off with many thanks, and many a backward bow;
And then the glow it faded, and my heart began to swell,
As down the glen away she went, my jost Kentucky Belle.

When Conrad came in the evening, the moon was shining high; Baby and I were both crying—I couldn't tell him why;

But a battered suit of rebel gray was hanging on the wall.
And a thin old horse, with drooping head stood in Kentucky's stall. Well, he was kind, and never once said a hard word to me; He knew I couldn't help it-'twas all for the Tennessee. But, after the war was over, just think what came to pass.

A letter, sir, and the two were safe back in the old Blue Grass.

The Ind had got across the border, riding Kentucky Belle: And Kentuck she was thriving, and fat, and hearty and well.

He cared for her and kept her, nor touched her with whip or spur;

Ah! we've had many horses, but never a hor like her!! CONSTA. E FENIMORE WOOLSON.

Who defeated Napoleon at the battle of Waterloo? The Germans claim Bluch-er the victor, while Englishmen say Wei-lington? Which is correct?

Wellington being in chief command Wellington being in their command, must receive the credit for the victory. But even the English admit Blucher's great share in the defeat of Napoleon. "Blucher." says a recognized authority, "appeared on the field just as Wellington repulsed the last attack of Napoleon. At that critical moment Blucher was seen emerging from the wood of Frichg-mont on the French right; and the simultaneous fresistible charge converted the French retreat into a tumultuous flight." If Blucher had not arrived, 178 French would have been defeated, not routed and crushed as they were.

On what fingers are rings worn? Is Herbert Spencer still living? A. R. Finger rings are worn on the third and fourth fingers of both hands as a rule; an old fashion not followed now to any extent, was to wear rings on the first and second fingers, too. The third finger of the left hand is the "ring finger" on which the engagement ring and the wedding ring are wein; it is said to have a very innimate co hection with the heart, though doctors don't know of any. A bishop wears his official ring on the fore-finger of his right hand; he is the cally recently wears a time on that only person who wears a ring on that finger regularly. Herbert Spencer is still

The continued case of Fred Connors was called for shooting Ernest Layton in the leg with a pistol bail last Saturday.

These two men were members of a gang of tramps, and when the police went to make a raid on them Officer Wright saw Connors shoot Layton. Commors has been staying in the city jall, and Layton has been staying at his brothers, in Richmond.

The men said yesterday morning that it was only a drunken frolic, and there was no malice between them. Layton said he was sorry for Connors, and hoped he would get out. Layton's appearance this morning was very good, and he was dressed nicely. He still limps very much from his wound. The case was certified to the Hustings Court.

It is not generally known by the people of Manchester that about twenty-seven years ago this city had a police force of eighteen men. The late Mr. Thomas Hunt was then Chief of the force, and he was succeeded by Mr. Spencer T. Hancock.

The force was gradually reduced in numbers until there were only three policemen in the city. A few years ago a fourth man was elected, and a short time since the Council authorized the Police Commissioners to put on another man, but it has never been done, it is impossible for two men to patroi the city of Manchester. It covers a great deal of territory, and robbery is bound to continue as long as it has such a small force.

DANVILLE, VA., May 15.—Special.—A meeting of representative tobacco manufacturers of Virginia and North Carolina was held, pursuant to call at the Hotel Burton this afternoon to take action on the exception resulting in Congress to the proposition pending in Congress to increase the internal revenue tax on to-bacco from six to eight cents. There were present representatives from Danville and Martinsville, Leskesville, Statesville, Reldsville, Grensboro, Winston, and Mount Aire, N. C.

Mount Airy, N. C.

John F. Rison, of Danville, called the meeting to order. J. W. Hanes, of Winston, was made temporary chairman, and W. R. Collie, of Danville, secretary. The report of the Committee on Permanent Organization was:

"The name of this organization shall be the Tobacco Trade of Virginia and North Carolina. Permanent officers—J. W. Hanes, Winston, president; J. D. Spencer, Danville, first vice-president; P. P. Watson, Martinsville, second vice-president; W. R. Collie, Danville, second vice-president; W. R. Collie, Danville, secretary."

The report was adopted.

A committee of nine on resolutions was appointed as follows: G. A. Follen (chairman), John F. Rison, A. D. Witten, R. J. Reynolds, P. P. Watson, J. H. Sparger, John L. King, W. W. Rankin, and J. N. Wyllie.

This committee made a rather elaborate report, of which the following is an ab-Resolved. That the proposed increase in the tax on manufactured tobacco would be very hurtful to the interests of manufacturers, growers and laborers, and we, therefore, urge our senators and repre-sentatives to oppose such increase vigor-The profits of this industry are now so meagre that such increase in the tax would tend to lower wages of factory employes and prices of raw leaf to the farmer. The conditions now existing in the business make it impracticable to gressional action on manufacturer, farmer, and laborer would be as stated.

Copies of these resolutions are ordered sent to the congressmen of both States immediately, and to the tobacco trade boards of cities in Virginia and North

C. Cole, Statesville; J. S. King, Greens Mr. King's resolution was adopted, directing the secretary to request the trade in towns not represented to send a representative to Washington to co-operate with the committee just named.

The meeting then finally adjourned.

JUDGE WRIGHT'S HAPPY IDEA. The Unveiling of Portraits of Prominent Men a Great Success. STEVENSVILLE, VA., May 15 .- Special.-It was Judge T. R. B. Wright who conceived the idea of decorating the walls of the courthouses of the Ninth Circuit, with the portraits of the prominent nen of the respective counties, a brief meation of which was made in to-day Times.

After a very extensive correspondence and systematic effort to interest others and procure portraits this occasion was selected for unveiling the portraits pro-Phough the day was very inclement, full house of ladies and gentlemen ; fested the interest which had

The interesting ceremonies of present

The interesting ceremonies of presenting and receiving the thirty-four portraits, which now decorated the walls of the courthouse were very extended.

Judge Wright presided and the ceremonies were opened with a prayer by Rev. Frank Beale. Then C. B. Jones, J. William Fleet, W. F. Bagby, Judge Dew, Rev. B. C. Henning, H. R. Pollard. Theodore Courtney, J. R. Saunders and Judge Blakey, who had been selected to take a part in presenting and receiving the off-ferent portraits ably interested the large appreciative audience and then there were eloquent addresses from Herbert Lewis, Colonel Aylett, James Stubbs, Isaac Diggs, James T. Bland. Boyd Sears, Rev. Mr. Kirk, William Evans, R. H. Bagby and James Lewis.

In answer to repeated calls, Judge Wright in a few remarks, closed the ceremonies.
